"When it comes to our marketing material, when we work with Summit we know we are not going to get in trouble. They let us know what is mandatory – and what is optional – and give us suggestions to consider, rather than just sending it back. They are great educators. We learn what can and cannot be said which makes us more efficient the next time. Summit helps us develop independent materials to stand out and be competitive and allows us to be innovative, creative, and be prominent with professionalism and polish."

"I have worked with multiple different compliance companies over a 17-year career. Most of these companies made me feel like just another paycheck, and that the safety and wellbeing of my clients and myself were the last thing on their minds. When I worked with these other companies, compliance became the process of following arbitrary rules and doing so because "following the rules" was the 1st priority. I was feeling overwhelmed with compliance and that my efforts were making things worse. Compliance was taking me away from what I love most about my business - the customers.

On the advice of a trusted consultant I hired SCG. Within our first working week I could see, and more importantly feel, the difference. SCG genuinely cared about our success and our customers' safety and wellbeing. With our customers placed first, compliance became a way to safely enhance our message. Our discussions revolve more around how to make the best customer experience and "following the rules" guides us to that outcome. They have helped us grow our business in confidence."
